

CROP INSURANCE

Farming is a volatile business. Crop insurance protects farmers from losses in yield.

MISCELLANEOUS

Farm Bill programs include efforts to help beginning, veteran and other new farmers and ranchers get into the field and start producing food for our nation.

CONSERVATION

Programs to help farms

tomorrow and the future.

implement natural resources conservation efforts to promote a healthier environment for today,

COMMODITIES

Price and income support for farmers who raise products such as dairy, sugar, corn, wheat and rice, including disaster assistance to help them weather uncertainty.

HORTICULTURE

Farmers markets and local food programs - as well as research and infrastructure for fruits, vegetables and other horticultural crops - are supported by the Farm Bill.

Big Impacts in Rural Communities

ENERGY

Programs in the Farm Bill encourage farmers to grow and process biofuel crops - helping farmers, ranchers and business owners install renewable energy systems.

Sesesiese

NUTRITION

Food export subsidy programs and international food aid programs help farmers compete in the international economy, while benefiting the less fortunate.

Nutritional programs help families and children in our communities have better acces to healthy foods. Every year, nearly 40 million individuals and families receive food support to help keep our nation healthy.

FORESTRY

Natural resources are crucial to the economic health of rural communities. Forest conservation programs help farmers and rural communities as good stewards of forestry resources.

RURAL DEVELOPMENT

Business and community development programs such as rural housing and infrastructure - including broadband - help to foster growth and economic development in rural communities.

Farm and food research, education and extension programs support farming industries and rural communities, while also providing critical training for the next generations of farmers and ranchers.

RESEARCH, EXTENSION AND RELATED MATTERS

CREDIT

Federal loan programs help farmers access capital to grow and sustain their farming operations.

FIND OUT MORE!