

Main Street Funders Roundtable

Business Oregon is the state's economic development agency and consists of approximately 90 programs and a roughly $2 billion biennial budget. We provide support for communities and businesses in the form of infrastructure funding, business financing, innovation and entrepreneurship related activities, global trade, broadband, arts and culture, and more.

The agency employs about 220 people, and most programs are best accessed through a local Regional Development Officer. RDOs live and work in the regions they serve and are generally the primary conduit to the agency's various programs.
